

GRAND JURORS READY WITH REPORT ON FIRE

Walter M. Sutton announced yesterday.

Following completion of testimony by Counselman Beck, the grand jurors launched a lengthy discussion of the evidence they had assembled during almost a week of probing. A committee of three was appointed to draw up recommendations for the jury on the poll of the jurors on yesterday afternoon.

Also to come before the jury this morning are two murder charges against Jasper Lindsey, 21, with alleged fatal stabbing of Jesse Neme on November 15 at the corner Highland avenue and Fort street.

The other charges against Lindsey are the alleged fatal stabbing of Joseph Davis on the night of November 24.

OVER MILLION GREET F. D. R. IN ARGENTINA

Casa Rosada, a crowd almost filled the near-by Plaza de Mayo, an area two blocks wide and three blocks long.

The exuberant Argentines shouted "Viva Democracy" and "Viva Roosevelt" until the United States and Argentine presidents appeared on a balcony. The two smiled and waved and shook hands in view of the crowd.

Flowers From Rooftops

The roof and every window of a seven-story building opposite the Casa Rosada were filled with onlookers, tossing flowers and cheering.

This meeting of the Argentine and United States Presidents was their second of the day, for Justo greeted President Roosevelt as he left the Indianapolis and rode with him through the noisy throng to the United States embassy.

Some who broke through police barriers in attempts to reach the presidential car felt the blows of police clubs as their excited disorder threatened to tie up the 11-car procession of United States and Argentine officials. One mounted grenadier went down with his horse, and another rider was unseated in the greatest welcome ever accorded by the country.

Sabers Drive Back Crowd

On the Plaza San Martin mounted officers rode at the crowd with drawn sabers, forcing the spectators back behind lines.

Along the whole route there were shouts of "Roosevelt! Roosevelt!" United States and Argentine officials declared they viewed the reception of President Roosevelt as a good augury for the success of the inter-American parley.

He already had stirred Latin America with his speech before the Brazilian congress in Rio de Janeiro

Friday when he declared the "false gods" of dominations, coalitions and balances of power had no place in the western hemisphere.

First to Visit Country.

President Roosevelt, who proposed the conference in notes last winter to open the meeting and present the United States executive.

Mr. Roosevelt, the first United States president to visit Argentina while in office, made his headquarters for his three-day stay at the United States embassy, a handsome structure surrounded by a beautiful park.

Following his call on Justo at Government House—when President Roosevelt was understood to have thanked the Argentine president for his warm reception—Mr. Roosevelt received members of the United States delegation at the embassy. Among them was Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Tumultuous Welcome.

The President dined privately at 9 p. m. Tomorrow morning he is scheduled to take an auto tour of the city and later to receive President Justo, who is to accompany him to the legislative palace for the initial session of the parley.

Hundreds of beflagged vessels in the Rio de la Plata tied down their whistles as the Indianapolis, escorted by eight Argentine warships and a squadron of airplanes, sailed up the river.

On shore, sirens and automobile horns raised a terrific din as crowds rushed to the scene and through hordes along the announced route of James Roosevelt's car.

James Roosevelt, the President's son, was the first to greet the party to set foot in Argentina as the Indianapolis made fast to a gaily decorated pier along which a red carpet, an eighth of a mile in length, was stretched.

The younger Roosevelt shook hands with members of the receiving group, including President Justo, and then reboarded the cruiser to escort his father down the gangplank.

Heavy Guard in Streets.

Thousands in the Plaza Britannica and the streets close to the dock applauded as the visiting President stepped to the quay just before 2 p. m. (11 a. m. Atlantic time).

United States Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell introduced the two presidents.

As Mr. Roosevelt took his seat in a large open car, he said to Justo, with a smile, "Mi amigo" ("my friend").

Justo returned the greeting with an embrace, and a moment later seated himself on President Roosevelt's left.

The 11 official cars, heavily guarded by Argentine police and American secret service agents, formed a line behind 350 blue-uniformed, white-paquetted horse grenadiers of General Jose De San Martin, named for the Argentine who liberated the country from Spanish rule in 1812.

Mr. Roosevelt, carrying a bunch of red roses in his left hand, waved his high silk hat to the cheering throngs with his right hand.

Receives Degree.

The hot sun of the Argentine summer beat down on the crowds. Hundreds perched in office and hotel windows, clapping and hurling flowers on the motorcade.

In the aristocratic residential sections and the parks through which the line of cars passed, heavily scented jacaranda trees were in full purple bloom.

Embassy row, on the Avenida Alvear, flew the flags of all major world powers.

A roar went up from the crowd as the United States and Argentine presidents reached the United States embassy, a 22-room marble building in Palermo park.

Early in the event, after his formal call on the Argentine executive, President Roosevelt received Dr. Joaquin Guallo, president of the University of Buenos Aires, who awarded him the degree of doctor of laws, honoris causa.

ANTI-NAZI DEMONSTRATION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—An anti-Nazi demonstration in front of the German embassy was broken up by police today with the arrest of 30 marchers from Baltimore and Washington.

BIG BROTHERS CALLED TO MAP '36 FUND DRIVE

vote a couple of hours' work in order to bring a lot of happiness to destitute families to fill out the volunteer campaign in The Constitution and mail it to the Big Brothers' headquarters.

The headquarters opened yesterday at 101 Walton street, N. W., with Mrs. Maude Baker in charge. Families wishing aid at Christmas time may make their needs known by calling at the headquarters or by calling Walnut 7999, the Big Brothers' headquarters' phone.

No luncheon meeting Thursday.

General Chairman Frank Fling will push the organization of the 1936 Big Brothers to completion, with the naming of committees, allotting of work and the other details.

Charity Ball Planned.

Plans already are under way for the fourth annual Big Brothers' charity ball, which will be held Thursday, December 17, at the Shrine mosque. Atlantans are familiar by now with all the fun these affairs furnish, with fine dance orchestras, unusual floor shows and other entertainments.

But the thought behind all this is the same idea which started off the Big Brothers four years ago—to bring happiness to needy families which otherwise might wake on Christmas morning to find a gray cloud of destitution and desolation hanging over their home, which should be radiating a bright glow of Christmas cheer.

No Atlanta would wish to have the families actually wake on Christmas morning with the gleam of expectancy in their eyes turned suddenly to bewilderment and childish despair when they find Santa Claus has forgotten them.

U. S. AND FRANCE AGREE ON DEBT NEGOTIATIONS

Interest and principal. Britain's obligation is slightly larger.

Reasons for Talks.

The French decision probably can be traced to a two-fold motive:

An effort to enlist at least "tacit" United States approval for a European front of constitutional governments arrayed against the Fascist bloc headed by Germany, Japan and Italy.

2. An attempt to find a source of foreign credits which France will need in event of a new European war.

An effort to enlist at least "tacit" United States approval for a European front of constitutional governments arrayed against the Fascist bloc headed by Germany, Japan and Italy.

Settlement of the British and French war debts to the United States would remove one of the greatest obstacles to close political and economic co-operation between the three parliamentary countries.

France's and Britain's default in the depth of the world depression embittered relations between Washington, Paris and London and was an important factor in preventing an agreement on currency stabilization at the World Economic Conference in 1933.

The two nations combined owe a total of nearly $9,000,000,000 (B) in principal. This represents sums advanced to them during the World War to buy munitions and supplies.

The British debt settlement, negotiated secretly in Washington by Lord Balfour, provided for total payment of $4,000,000,000 in semi-annual installments at an interest rate of 4 1/4 per cent.

France, funding its indebtedness several years later, agreed in the Mellon-Berenger treaty to pay $4,025,000,000 (B) semi-annually. The interest arrangement was complex, but it averaged about 2 per cent yearly.

Both treaties were ratified by the house of representatives and the senate. Usually it is necessary only for the senate to approve a treaty, but to make token payments of small amount.

The French hope that the debt agreement will coincide with other political and economic agreements destined to consolidate peace and restore world commerce by reducing quotas and lowering tariff barriers.

It is understood that in the projected agreement, Britain's debt would remain larger than that of France and that in the three-power adjustments France's war debt to Britain would be liquidated.

To Fix Total First.

Once the sum total of the debts has been fixed, France and the United States will discuss in detail the plan of payment.

Blum is likely to be sent as special ambassador to Washington with the understanding that France no longer is to be considered a defaulter. Paris would sign an agreement to continue payments regularly until the debt is liquidated, likely by 1937.

The new totals of the debts of France and Britain to the United States would be fixed at levels lower than the debts owed when they first defaulted in 1932 and 1933 respectively, but would not be fixed at so little as to be merely symbolic payments.

It was recalled that France's defaulted war debt installments now owed the United States total $215,000,000 while under the old funding agreement France would have to pay $8,500,000,000 by 1937. This includes principal and interest.

The French debt was originally funded in 1926 at $4,025,000,000 principal. Efforts to meet Monday's debt talks secret were so intense that the foreign office even denied Bullitt had held them.

Blum Hinted in May.

First indication that France was negotiating to renew payments to the United States—a proposal which brought about the overthrow of the Herriot government—was given by Premier Leon Blum last May 15, in a speech before the American club.

Three days ago Rene Richard, Radical Socialist member of the chamber of deputies, introduced a resolution inviting the French government to renew negotiations with Washington with a view to "eventual settlement of the debts to the United States contracted during the war."

Blum, in the early days of his popular front government, stated that he regretted the "misunderstanding" between the United States and France over the debt question.

"I wish with all my heart that this misunderstanding might quickly disappear," he said.

He intimated that the elimination of trade barriers between the two nations might bring about such an economic revival that resumption of debt payments would be practical.

The new totals of the debts of France and Britain to the United States would be fixed at levels lower than the debts owed when they first defaulted in 1932 and 1933 respectively, but would not be fixed at so little as to be merely symbolic payments.

It was recalled that France's defaulted war debt installments now owed the United States total $215,000,000 while under the old funding agreement France would have to pay $8,500,000,000 by 1937. This includes principal and interest.

The French debt was originally funded in 1926 at $4,025,000,000 principal. Efforts to meet Monday's debt talks secret were so intense that the foreign office even denied Bullitt had held them.

Blum Hinted in May.

First indication that France was negotiating to renew payments to the United States—a proposal which brought about the overthrow of the Herriot government—was given by Premier Leon Blum last May 15, in a speech before the American club.

Three days ago Rene Richard, Radical Socialist member of the chamber of deputies, introduced a resolution inviting the French government to renew negotiations with Washington with a view to "eventual settlement of the debts to the United States contracted during the war."

Blum, in the early days of his popular front government, stated that he regretted the "misunderstanding" between the United States and France over the debt question.

"I wish with all my heart that this misunderstanding might quickly disappear," he said.

He intimated that the elimination of trade barriers between the two nations might bring about such an economic revival that resumption of debt payments would be practical.

Settlement of the British and French war debts to the United States would remove one of the greatest obstacles to close political and economic co-operation between the three parliamentary countries.

France's and Britain's default in the depth of the world depression embittered relations between Washington, Paris and London and was an important factor in preventing an agreement on currency stabilization at the World Economic Conference in 1933.

The two nations combined owe a total of nearly $9,000,000,000 (B) in principal. This represents sums advanced to them during the World War to buy munitions and supplies.

The British debt settlement, negotiated secretly in Washington by Lord Balfour, provided for total payment of $4,000,000,000 in semi-annual installments at an interest rate of 4 1/4 per cent.

France, funding its indebtedness several years later, agreed in the Mellon-Berenger treaty to pay $4,025,000,000 (B) semi-annually. The interest arrangement was complex, but it averaged about 2 per cent yearly.

Both treaties were ratified by the house of representatives and the senate. Usually it is necessary only for the senate to approve a treaty, but to make token payments of small amount.

The French hope that the debt agreement will coincide with other political and economic agreements destined to consolidate peace and restore world commerce by reducing quotas and lowering tariff barriers.

It is understood that in the projected agreement, Britain's debt would remain larger than that of France and that in the three-power adjustments France's war debt to Britain would be liquidated.

To Fix Total First.

Once the sum total of the debts has been fixed, France and the United States will discuss in detail the plan of payment.

Blum is likely to be sent as special ambassador to Washington with the understanding that France no longer is to be considered a defaulter. Paris would sign an agreement to continue payments regularly until the debt is liquidated, likely by 1937.

OVER MILLION GREET F. D. R. IN ARGENTINA

Casa Rosada, a crowd almost filled the near-by Plaza de Mayo, an area two blocks wide and three blocks long. The exuberant Argentines shouted "Viva Democracy!" and "Viva Roosevelt!" until the United States and Argentine presidents appeared on a balcony. The two smiled and waved and shook hands in view of the crowd.

Flowers From Roofs. The roof and every window of a seven-story building opposite the Casa Rosada were filled with onlookers, waving flowers and cheering. This meeting of the Argentine and United States Presidents was their second of the day, for Justo greeted President Roosevelt as he left the Indianapolis and rode with him through the noisy throng to the United States embassy.

Some who broke through police barriers in attempts to reach the presidential car felt the blows of police clubs as their excited disorder threatened to tie up the 11-car procession of the Rio de Janeiro and Argentine officials. One mounted grenadier went down with his horse, and another rider was unseated in the greatest welcome ever accorded by the country.

Sabers Drive Back Crowd. On the Plaza San Martin mounted officers rode at the crowd with drawn sabers, forcing the spectators back behind lines.

Along the whole route there were shouts of "Roosevelt! Roosevelt!" United States and Argentine officials declared they viewed the reception of President Roosevelt as a good augury for the success of the inter-American pact.

He already had stirred Latin America with his speech before the Brazilian congress in Rio de Janeiro

Friday when he declared the "false gods" of domination, coalition and balance of power had no place in the western hemisphere.

Plans to Visit Country. President Roosevelt, who proposed the conference in notes last winter to other American governments, is to deliver the opening address when the session gets under way at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

President Justo, who called the conference at Buenos Aires, is scheduled to open the meeting and present the United States executive. Mr. Roosevelt, the first United States president to visit Argentina since 1898, is expected to stay at the United States embassy, a handsome structure surrounded by a beautiful park.

Following his call on Justo at Government House—when President Roosevelt was understood to have thanked the Argentine president for his warm reception—Mr. Roosevelt will meet members of the United States delegation at the embassy. Among them was Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The President dined privately at 9 p. m. Tomorrow morning he is scheduled to take an auto tour of the city to receive President Justo, who is to accompany him to the legislative palace for the initial session of the pact.

Hundreds of beflagged vessels in the Rio de Janeiro harbor, their whistles as the Indianapolis, escorted by eight Argentine warships and a squadron of airplanes, sailed up the river.

On shore, sirens and automobile horns raised a terrific din as crowds rushed to the squares and thoroughfares along the announced route of President Roosevelt's car.

James Roosevelt, the President's son, was the first of the United States party to set foot in Argentina. Indianapolis made fast to a gaily decorated pier along which a red carpet, an eighth of a mile in length, was stretched.

The younger Roosevelt shook hands with members of the receiving group, including President Justo, and then rode to the cruiser to escort his father down the gangplank.

Heavy Guard in Streets. Thousands in the Plaza Britannica and the streets close to the dock applauded as the visiting President stepped to the quay just before 2 p. m. (11 a. m. Atlanta time).

United States Ambassador Alexander W. Wedell introduced the two presidents.

As Mr. Roosevelt took his seat in a large open car, he said to Justo, with a smile, "Mi amigo" ("my friend").

Justo returned the greeting with an embrace, and a moment later seated himself on President Roosevelt's left. The 11 official cars, heavily guarded by Argentine police and American secret service agents, formed a line behind 350 blue-uniformed, white-equestrian horse grenadiers of General Jose de San Martin, named for the Argentine who liberated the country from Spanish rule in 1812.

Mr. Roosevelt, carrying a bunch of red roses in his left hand, waved his high silk hat to the cheering throngs with his right hand.

Receives Degree. The hot sun of the Argentine summer beat down on the crowds. Hundreds perched in office and hotel windows, clapping and hurling flowers on the motorcade.

In the aristocratic residential sections and the parks through which the line of cars passed, heavily scented jacaranda trees were in full purple bloom.

Embassy row, on the Avenida Alvear, flew the flags of all major world powers.

A roar went up from the crowd as the United States and Argentine presidents reached the United States embassy, a 22-room marble building in Palermo park.

Early in the event, after his formal call on the Argentine executive, President Roosevelt received Dr. Vicente Gallo, president of the University of Buenos Aires, who awarded him the degree of doctor of laws, honoris causa.

BIG BROTHERS CALLED TO MAP '36 FUND DRIVE

vote a couple of hours' work in order to bring a lot of happiness to desolate families to fill out the volunteer coupon in The Constitution and mail it to the Big Brothers' headquarters. The headquarters opened yesterday at 101 Walton street, N. W., with Mrs. Maude Baker in charge. Families wishing aid at Christmas time may make their needs known by calling at the headquarters or by calling Walnut 7900, the Big Brothers' headquarters' phone.

At the luncheon meeting Thursday, General Chairman Frank Flinn will push the organization of the 1936 Big Brothers to completion, with the naming of committees, allotting of work and the other details.

Plans already are under way for the fourth annual Big Brothers' charity ball which will be held Thursday, December 17, at the Shrine mosque. Atlanta is familiar by now with all the fun these affairs furnish, with a fine dance orchestra, unusual floor shows and other entertainments. But the thought behind all this is the same idea which started off the Big Brothers four years ago—to bring happiness to needy families, which otherwise might wake on Christmas morning to find a gray cloud of despondency and desolation hanging over their home, which should be radiating a bright glow of Christmas cheer.

No Atlanta wish to see sleepless nights and Christmas morning with the gleam of expectancy in their eyes turned suddenly into bewilderment and childish distress when they find Santa Claus has forgotten them.

No Atlanta wish to see hungry on the day of Christmas celebration, while they and others more fortunate enjoy abundance. Atlanta is just not made that way.

That is the reason the Big Brothers have been able to provide for several thousand families at Christmas, and it is the reason they are confident of even greater success this year.

Whether or not you have participated in the Big Brother campaign before, fill out the coupon found on this page and mail it to the Big Brothers' headquarters, 101 Walton street, N. W., so you can do your part to make "Merry Christmas" a reality for every needy family in Atlanta.

U. S. AND FRANCE AGREE ON DEBT NEGOTIATIONS

Interest and principal. Britain's obligation is slightly larger.

The French decision probably can be traced to a two-fold motive: 1. An effort to enlist at least "the United States approval for a European front of constitutional governments arrayed against the Fascist bloc headed by Germany, Japan and Italy."

2. An attempt to find a source of foreign credits which France will need in event of a new European war.

Under the United States' Johnston act, foreign nations which default on debts are prohibited from borrowing money in the United States.

The French made their last payment in 1932. Great Britain first defaulted in 1933, but for a time continued to make token payments of small amount.

The French hope, that the debt agreement will coincide with other political and economic agreements destined to consolidate peace and restore world commerce by reducing quotas and lowering tariff barriers.

It is understood that in the projected agreement, Britain's debt would be larger than that of France and that in the three-power adjustments France war debts to Britain would be liquidated.

To Fix Total First. Once the sum total of the debt has been fixed, France and the United States will discuss in detail the plan of payment.

The new totals of the debts of France and Britain to the United States would be fixed at levels lower than the debts owed when they first defaulted in 1932 and 1933 respectively, but would not be fixed at so little as to be merely symbolic payments.

It was recalled that France's defaulted war debt installments now owe the United States total $215,000,000 while under the old funding agreement France would have to pay $850,000,000 by 1957. This includes both principal and interest.

The French debt was originally funded in 1926 at $4,025,000,000 principal.

Efforts to keep Monday's debt talks secret were so intense that the foreign office even denied Bullitt had called there.

Blum Hinted in May. First indication that France was negotiating to renew payments to the United States—a proposal which brought about the overthrow of the Herriot government—was given by Premier Leon Blum last May 15, in a speech before the American club.

Three days ago Rene Rocard, Radical Socialist member of the chamber of deputies, introduced a resolution inviting the French government to renew negotiations with Washington with a view to "eventual settlement of the debts to the United States contracted during the war."

"I wish with all my heart that that misunderstanding might quickly disappear," he said.

He intimated that the elimination of trade barriers between the two nations might bring about such an economic revival that resumption of debt payments would be practical.

A Great Obstacle. Settlement of the British and French war debts to the United States would remove one of the greatest obstacles to close political and economic co-operation between the three principal countries.

France and Britain's default in the depth of the world depression embittered relations between Washington, Paris and London and was an important factor in preventing an agreement on currency stabilization at the World Economic Conference in 1933.

The two nations combined owe a total of nearly $9,000,000,000 (B) in principal. This represents sums advanced to them during the World War to buy munitions and supplies.

The British debt settlement, negotiated secretly in Washington by Lord Balfour, provided for total payment of $4,600,000,000 in semi-annual installments at an interest rate of 4 1/4 per cent.

France, funding its indebtedness several years later, agreed in the Melon-Bergeron treaty to pay $4,025,000,000 (B) semi-annually. The interest arrangement was complex, but it averaged about 2 per cent yearly.

Both treaties were ratified by the house of representatives and the senate. Usually it is necessary only for the senate to approve a treaty, but where public finance is affected the house must also.

Fald When Prosperous. During the years of world prosperity both France and Great Britain made their debt payments regularly. But in 1930, when the force of the depression was felt, there arose a public clamor in both nations against the insistence of "Uncle Shylock"—as the European cartoonists called America—on payment of the debts.

Matters were brought to a climax in 1931 when President Hoover proposed his famous "moratorium" to keep Germany from a financial crash. As a result, the former allies agreed to allow reparations payments from the reich to be delayed for a year and in return America gave them a 12-month period of grace on war debts.

When the "moratorium" expired in 1932, Germany declined to resume payments of reparations. France and Britain, blaming the United States for the lapse in Germany's payments, insisted on a revision of their war debts.

Bitter notes flew back and forth between the State Department and European countries. Mr. Hoover showed evidences of being willing to make further concessions to the debtors, but, adamant, instructed him not to yield.

France defaulted in December, 1932, after a stormy session in the French chamber of deputies, which was surrounded by veterans demanding that America should receive "not a sou."

Britain defaulted the following June, although making a small "token payment" as a gesture of good faith.

Sends "Duns" Regularly. Since then the treasury has sent them and other defaulting countries semi-yearly notices when their debt installments were due. And each time they have explained that the financial and economic conditions responsible for the original default still existed. Only Finland has made all its payments.

Any debt revision made must now be approved by congress, which comes legal. But observers believe the attitude of that body toward reduction is not so opposed as it was several years ago, particularly if the revisions are connected with commercial and political agreements helpful to America.

WASHINGTON. Professes Ignorance. WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(UP) State and Treasury Department officials here tonight professed to have no knowledge of the war debt discussions conducted in Paris except for press dispatches.

Officials pointed out, however, that the United States has always stood ready to "liquidate" the World War debts since the first defaults began. The United States has been cautious about accepting any proposals which would involve a reduction of the amount of payments.

The United States always has insisted upon dealing with each debtor separately. There is no sign of any change in this policy, therefore a triangular arrangement between France and Great Britain was doubted in high official circles here.

Payments in 20 years would tend to hasten the settlement of the debts, as present contracts run until about 1955—or a payment period of 62 years and debt arrangements negotiated in 1923.

Reduction of the payment period if a settlement finally is agreed upon presumably would mean a large reduction in the amount of the payments since France and Great Britain already have gone into default on grounds that they could not meet the present size of the installments even when spread over a period of 62 years.

In the end, congress is the sole authority for any change of the debt contracts, and any revised plan of settlement made by State Department or Treasury representatives must be submitted to congress for final approval.

France is widely reported as eager to reach a new settlement because under the present application of the Johnston act, she and other defaulters are deprived from borrowing new money as long as they are in default. Fear of war and dire need for American supplies or funds is believed to be prompting the reported French and British action.

WPA COURT MURDER WILL BE REMOVED

Picture of Negro Eating Melon as Lincoln Reads—Draws Protest.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Chicago M. Plackner, Bronx borough engineer, disclosed today that WPA artists would start tomorrow removing from a county courthouse mural a representation of a negro eating watermelon while Abraham Lincoln reads the emancipation proclamation.

Plackner said that the move resulted from complaints from negro organizations that the depiction was a "burlesque" on the negro race, and that the change was advised by the Municipal Art Commission after an inquiry.

Samuel Engelhart, WPA official in charge of the courthouse art project, said that the watermelon-eating figure had been included merely to "lighten" the mural and that it would be replaced by the likeness of a negro "prominent in Lincoln's time."

JOBLESS LAW PASSED. HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—(AP) In an atmosphere free of any apparent partisanship, a special session of the Connecticut legislature enacted tonight an unemployment insurance law to conform with the federal social security act. Governor Wilbur L. Cross signed the bill in its original form almost at once. The measure passed both houses unanimously.

Mr. Hopkins is on a business trip to Hartford, Conn. A native of Augusta, Mrs. Hopkins had been a resident of Atlanta since July, moving here from Columbia, S. C., where she resided for a number of years. She was a member of Trinity church, Columbia.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, John R. Hopkins Jr.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Dickerson, of Columbia, and a brother, Weyman Dickerson, also of Columbia.

ARBITER TO BE NAMED FOR WHITEHEAD SUIT

Counsel for Both Sides Given 10 Days To Agree Upon Choice.

An arbiter to hear all evidence and to decide points of law in the suit brought by Mrs. Laura Whitehead contesting the will of her husband, the late Joseph B. Whitehead, wealthy Atlantan, was ordered appointed yesterday by Judge E. D. Thomas after a hearing in Fulton superior court.

The judge gave counsel of both sides 10 days to agree among themselves as to whom the arbiter shall be, and ruled that if one had not been selected in that time, the court would appoint one.

The grounds for the suit are based on the contention of Mrs. Whitehead that not more than one-third of a man's estate can be donated to charity to the exclusion of his heirs, and the charge she was fraudulently persuaded to sign a contract with Whitehead as to the amount she was to receive at his death. Under the contract, she was to receive slightly under $200,000 and, her attorneys say, if she wins her contention, she will receive slightly less than $3,000,000 of an estate valued at $8,000,000.

Attorneys for Mrs. Whitehead are Arnold, Gambrell & Arnold, while Spaulding, Sibley, Troutman & Brock represent the Citizens & Southern National bank, executors of the Whitehead estate.

"I think the attorney general is due great credit for the success of the federal government's campaign to stamp out organized gangs of killers," he said yesterday. "In future we shall be able to devote more effort to crime prevention."

Assistant Attorney General McMahon, on Visit Here, Urges Proper Education of Children; Thinks Organized Gangs Are Things of Past.

A survey now being conducted by the federal government on the parole system as applied to federal prisoners is expected to prove of great help in the government's war to decrease organized crime in America, according to Brien McMahon, assistant attorney general of the United States.

McMahon is in Atlanta conferring with United States District Attorney Lawrence A. Camp on the forthcoming trials of the Koplid Quinn trials. A large number of individuals have been indicted in this case, facing charges of use of the mails to defraud, conspiracy and violation of the federal securities act. December 12 is the final date for the filing of pleas for change of venue or other technical moves by the defense. These will probably be heard at once, if there are any, by Judge Marvin Underwood and the places scheduled for trial in January.

McMahon expressed himself as delighted with the work done by Camp and his staff and referred to the successful prosecution of the American Bond & Share Corporations cases, among others.

He flew to Atlanta from Memphis, where he had been to investigate several cases, after attending the trials of the Arkansas peonage cases.

He will leave for Washington on the plane this afternoon.

Former County Commissioner and Businessman Dies of Heart Attack.

W. Manning Poole, former Fulton county commissioner, member of the present Fulton county grand jury and a brother of the late Harry G. Poole, Atlanta mortician, died yesterday of a heart attack at his residence on Cascade road. He was 68.

A native of Fulton county, Mr. Poole had been a resident here all his life. He was the operator of a business on a grocery on Peters street and was well known in trade circles of the city. Another brother, the late T. O. Poole, was special bailiff in the court of Superior Judge Hugh L. Dorey. He was a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, Forrester C. Poole and W. M. Poole Jr.; two daughters, Mrs. Frank E. Arnall and Miss Willie Poole; a brother, Charles F. Poole; a sister, Mrs. Bessie Duntun, and a grandson, Edward Arnall.

Funeral services will be in charge of Harry G. Poole.

JAIL CHANGE ORDERED TO ELIMINATE BRAWLS

Cells To Be Built Near Turnkey's Office at City Bastille.

Steps to eliminate brawls between prisoners in the fourth-floor "bull pen" of Atlanta police headquarters, scene of many recent fights, during one of which a man was fatally injured, were taken yesterday by Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant.

The chief, at a conference of superior officers, instructed captains to convert a large dining hall on the fourth floor into cell rooms. He ordered work of clearing the room of tables and chairs to start immediately.

Chief Sturdivant pointed out that the dining hall is closer to the turnkey's offices than the present "bull pen," and thus prisoners will come under closer supervision.

In this connection, the chief also pointed out that due to the distance from the turnkeys' stations to the present "bull pen," fights often assume serious proportions by the time the turnkeys hear disturbances and go to investigate them.

PATROLMEN GIVEN
RADIO CAR DUTY

Six Superior Officers Are Shifted in Orders Issued by Chief.

In accordance with recent orders from the public safety committee of city council, Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant yesterday assigned drivers to seven radio cars used by field lieutenants. A number of routine shifts, involving superior officers, were announced also.

Declaring the moves had no "political significance," the chief announced the following transfers, effective today:

Captain G. Neal Ellis, day to evening watch; Captain George T. Butler, evening to morning watch; Captain S. J. Roberts, morning to day watch; Field Lieutenant E. E. Callaway, day watch to morning watch, at his own request, and Field Lieutenant R. P. Burnett, morning to day watch, exchanging with Field Lieutenant Callaway.

Patrolman J. D. Corley was transferred from uniform duty to the detective bureau.

Patrolmen and the field lieutenants to whom they were assigned to drive follow: J. T. Hopkins, J. Hiram Davis; C. W. Cartwright, Reggie H. McLean; W. H. Rauschenberg, Fred Tipper; M. S. Collins, O. B. Jones; R. A. Sewell, John T. Laster; S. C. Peoples, M. R. Petty, and J. T. Thrasher, E. E. Callaway.

USURY BARS INTEREST, APPEALS COURT RULES

Collection of usurious interest on small loans in Georgia makes all the interest uncollectible, the Georgia court of appeals ruled yesterday.

In an opinion striking interest from a judgment obtained in Atlanta municipal court by the Industrial Finance Corporation, the court commented that "failure to comply with the small loan act . . . will prevent the lender from collecting the three and a half per cent per month interest authorized."

The court held the principal would not be forfeited.

MAN DIES IN STREET, IDENTITY IS SOUGHT

An unidentified man walking on Avon avenue, near Sylvan road, dropped dead yesterday morning of a heart attack. Physicians pronounced him dead when they arrived and the body was removed to the mortuary of J. Austin Dillon, where efforts are being made to ascertain his identity.

The man was described as being between 50 and 60 years old, weight between 150 and 170 pounds, blue gray eyes and silver gray hair.

When found he was attired in a tan raincoat, khaki shirt and blue overalls. No marks of identification were found.

School Band Asks Aid To March in Inaugural

Atlanta will have a chance to buy a big Saturday to help send the Tech High band to Washington for the inauguration.

This year's invitation to the musicians of Tech High school comes from the military powers in charge of the marching units of the inaugural procession and is the result of the fine record the Tech High band made in the parade four years ago when President Roosevelt was first inaugurated.

The last time the Smithies were invited by the Democratic national committee as a gesture of friendliness toward loyal Atlanta, but the boys did themselves proud and are now, apparently, permanent units in Democratic ceremonies.

Girls of Atlanta will sell the tags Saturday and during the morning the Smithies' band will parade the downtown streets.

The boys have no funds to make such a trip and they must appeal to the public to help finance them, if they are to carry Atlanta's banner in the parade.

VICTORY OVER CANCER IS SEEN BY KRAEMER

Famed Specialist Tells of Progress Made in Fight on Disease.

Research workers in the fight on cancer are encouraged by material progress revealed within the last few years, it was declared by Dr. W. E. Kraemer, of Wilmington, Del., a world-known cancer specialist, who arrived in Atlanta yesterday and will remain until tomorrow.

"At the end of 1935," said Dr. Kraemer yesterday, "an authentic report by the American College of Surgeons showed more than 25,000 persons had passed successfully what is known as the five-year cure period. That meant those persons who had been treated since 1930 had remained for five years free from any further symptoms of cancer."

"We believe that is definite progress, for it must be remembered the great majority of the cancer patients are past middle-age and five years means a great deal to them. The medical world's fight on cancer has been helped by the enlightenment of the public which has been fostered by the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Some years ago, persons with symptoms of cancer were afraid to submit themselves to medical treatment because they believed nothing could be done for them. More and more they are finding that people are being helped and this enlightenment is banishing the fear that caused them to avoid the efforts of doctors and to allow the disease to progress."

"I believe the method of treating cancer—through surgery, x-ray and radium—has undergone remarkable changes because people are recognizing the doctors are better educated to help them and the public is urging the doctors to help them."

"Through the United States and Europe some interesting developments have been discovered recently that will be released to the general public a little later and I am sure these developments will make the world extremely hopeful about the control of cancer."

Dr. Kraemer was visiting yesterday at the home of Dr. William Perrin Nielsen and was dinner guest with some Atlanta doctors and surgeons last night at the home of Dr. R. H. Pike.

Today he will speak to laymen of Atlanta at a luncheon at 12:30 at Davidson-Paxon's tea room. The luncheon will be sponsored by the Steiner Hospital Auxiliary. During his stay in Atlanta he is conferring with doctors and surgeons at the Steiner Cancer Clinic. He is director of the Ellsworth Stork Memorial Foundation of Wilmington, Del., and director of the tumor clinic of the Jefferson hospital in Philadelphia.

CHEROKEE JUDGESHIP PUZZLES POLITICIANS

Death of Successful Candidate Leaves Incumbency in Legal Tangle.

The question of who will be judge of the Cherokee superior court circuit after January 1 formed a lively topic of conversation in Capitol corridors yesterday.

Politicians saw in the situation a possible clash between Governor Talmadge and his one-time opponent for the governorship, Judge Claude C. Pittman, the Cherokee circuit incumbent.

Those who viewed the matter from a strictly legal standpoint regarded the case as one which may set an important precedent in Georgia law. Judge Pittman was defeated in the recent Democratic primary by James A. McFarland, who died November 25 following his election on November 3.

Talmadge Noncommittal. Talmadge declined to commit himself on whether he will attempt to appoint a judge or let Pittman continue to serve.

Individuals favoring the appointment of Judge William Ingram, of the Cartersville city court, are known to have approached the Governor in his behalf.

The law is clear that where a judge dies the Governor may appoint a successor to serve until January 1 following the next general election, attorneys said. Some said, however, they were puzzled in the present case because McFarland had not taken office.

They argued that Judge Pittman was elected to serve until his successor was elected and qualified. The discussion centered largely on the meaning of the word "qualified" in the law.

YOUNG WOMAN DIES IN OPERATING ROOM

Death Reveals Secret Marriage of Miss Frances Ford Last March.

Tragic death yesterday revealed the secret marriage of the former Miss Frances Ford, 23, of Atlanta, on October 23, to D. A. Youngdahl. The wedding was to have been announced next Sunday.

Mrs. Youngdahl, it was revealed, had been in an automobile accident with her husband on March 29. At this time she suffered a fractured leg. The leg was set, but attending surgeons reported it failed to knit properly. Another operation was planned yesterday at a private hospital here.

Mrs. Youngdahl was subjected to all tests and her heart was found to be in good condition, attending physicians said. She was given an anesthetic and the nurse in charge noticed she was not responding properly and summoned physicians. She died within a few minutes.

Doctors administered heart stimulants and worked over Mrs. Youngdahl nearly two hours in a vain effort to save her life. The case was said by doctors last night to be extremely rare, but it was reported, in one out of 3,000 to 4,000 instances defects of the heart fail to reveal themselves under normal examination.

Mrs. Youngdahl is survived by her husband, her mother, Mrs. Cora L. Ford, Atlanta; a sister, Miss Deane Ford, and a brother, Sam Ford. Funeral services will be held at Lawrenceville, with F. Q. Sammon in charge.

MARLINSPIKE MEN

Before they are rated "Able-Bodied" in ships of Cunard White Star, seamen must have a thorough knowledge of old-time "marlinspike seamanship." They'll splice 8 inch hawser or wire rope as expertly as ever their forbears did in sail. Skill of this sort can only be inspired by something deeper, more binding than the requirements of a rule. These men are born to the sea and bred in a seafaring tradition, centuries-old, which they carry on. Their world has always been shipshape and it is their personal pride to keep it so.

No less famed than Britain's sea tradition is her understanding of the quiet arts of hospitality. Evident at inn or manor house throughout the land and exemplified, in Cunard White Star ships, by hundreds of small attentions . . . in your deck steward's tactful way with mid-morning appetites . . . in the gardener's selection of an evening corsage. This gracious British welcome soothes as it pleases . . . you sense it as a particular distinction of a Cunard White Star crossing.

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation, and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. A. Leachman was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for hundreds of patients with a marvelous record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a right money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Jacob Drug Stores says "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your Piles misery or money back."—(adr.)

NO SUCCESSOR NAMED BY MIDAMERICA OWNERS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—(AP)—G. A. Tomlinson and George A. Ball met today to plan the future of the vast Van Sweringen railroad network, but announced after a prolonged conference that they would have no statement to make before tomorrow.

Tomlinson, Great Lakes shipping magnate, and Ball, a Muncie, Ind., glass jar manufacturer, are the owners of all outstanding stock in Mid-America Corporation, the top holding company in the Van Sweringen empire.

They met to select a successor to O. P. Sweringen, president of Mid-America, who died a week ago.

The two men will confer again tomorrow, but no assurance was given by Tomlinson's office that a selection would be made at that time.

Tomlinson announced last week that there would be no "shakeup" in the personnel of the Van Sweringen organizations. The three persons most frequently mentioned as Van Sweringen's successor are Charles L. Bradley, chairman of the Erie railroad and a vice president of Mid-America; Herbert Fitzpatrick, vice president and general counsel of Chesapeake & Ohio railroad; and Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, and recently a financial adviser to Van Sweringen.

The possibility remained tonight that a temporary appointment to the important executive position might be made.

Both Tomlinson and Ball were summoned today to testify December 7 at a senate investigation of railway financing in Washington. Records of the Mid-America Corporation also were subpoenaed. Tomlinson said he had no comment to make on the subpoena.

VERMONT GOVERNOR HELD IN BANK THEFT

R. Adams, of Rutland, after being informed that a warrant for his arrest had been issued.

Smith was the fifth official of the Marble Bank arrested during the past three months in connection with the alleged defalcation. Others were Vice President Samuel Howard, Treasurer Lathrop Baldwin, Trustee Bert Stafford and former Bookkeeper John J. Cocklin, all of Rutland. Also arrested recently in the case was a former state banking commissioner, Robert Clark, of Bellows Falls, now treasurer of the Bellows Falls Trust Company.

Only a week ago today, Cocklin was convicted by a jury on all 70 counts of larceny of bank funds totaling $124,000. Sentence is pending.

Upon arraignment recently, Clark had pleaded not guilty to a charge of misprision of a felony. His case has yet to be tried. Clark allegedly failed to report the defalcation he was said to have discovered at the local bank in 1932 prior to the "bank holiday."

Vice President Disappears.

Originally, Howard had been charged as an accessory in aiding Cocklin conceal the theft. The case was thrown out of court when Judge Butts sustained a demurrer filed in Howard's behalf. Subsequently, on November 18, another warrant charged Howard with misprision of a felony. Before the warrant could be served, however, Howard left Rutland the next day, presumably for New York city. Authorities here said he has not been seen since.

Baldwin was tried and convicted a fortnight ago on a perjury charge. It was claimed he falsified reports to the state banking commissioner. The verdict was appealed.

Stafford originally was charged with aiding to conceal the theft. Subsequently a new warrant charged him with misprision of a felony. He had pleaded not guilty to the latter charge. His trial is pending.

It was claimed that thefts occurred

James Melton Returns to Georgia For Woman's Club Concert Tonight

James Melton, nationally known tenor, and former Georgia boy, arrived in Atlanta yesterday afternoon for his concert at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight. The concert is being sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's Club, of which Mrs. W. F. Melton is president.

The fine arts department of the club, Mrs. W. F. Dunn, chairman, is in charge of the concert.

Mr. Melton was born in Moultrie, Ga., and attended the college training at the University of Georgia. It was here that his voice came into notice, while singing with a college quartet. He went to New York, where, after a brief stay, he began his professional career, singing both in the "big shots" of radio, and in the "smaller" of the club.

He became known as the possessor of the beautiful tenor voice in the Revelers' quartet.

over a period of approximately six years prior to 1932.

Smith was elected governor in 1934. His term expires in January.

ed with Chief Sturdivant there and it was plain to me he had been drinking.

Charges against the police chief will probably be filed with Councilman Walter M. Sutton, vice chairman of the public safety committee. Chairman Frank Reynolds was reported to be out of the city.

When the formal complaint is made, Sutton will confer with other members of the committee and a course of action be decided upon, he said.

Chief Sturdivant had little comment to make on the charges against him yesterday. He said "I will defend myself at the proper time."

His attorney, George Finch, declared "This is just a misunderstanding and a mistake. Charges that the chief was drinking are not true."

Meanwhile, Joseph Jacobs, attorney for the United Automobile Workers, was preparing a complaint charging that Chief Sturdivant came to the picket line at the automobile company plant in the city and urged the strikers to break the picket line.

C. H. Gillman, president of the local union of automobile workers, said the charges will be that Sturdivant was drunk and used opprobrious language to the pickets.

Lieutenant Jordan and two county policemen, Fred Bradford and W. L. Dunean, investigated. Sturdivant said he was carrying lunch to one of the workers in the plant when he was taken to those inside the building.

"Since the charges against the chief are already known to the public, I think he will welcome a hearing before the public safety committee," Councilman Howard Fair, member of the committee, said.

Admits Strong Words.

"When the altercation started Sunday," Chief Sturdivant said yesterday, "I probably did use some strong language but I was not drunk nor drinking."

"I have nothing to say about all these things except that I have been in bad standing with certain factions of organized labor ever since I took the firm stand I did during the textile strike here several years ago. At that time I prevented trouble."

"At the proper time I will prove my conduct at the Chevrolet plant was such that no one could criticize me," he asserted.

formed sources said, and will resign unless "units of the 'popular front government' approved the non-intervention policy."

In the ever-shifting network of European and Asiatic alliances growing out of the battle between Socialism, Communism and Fascism in Spain, France already has bound herself in a mutual assistance pact with Russia as a primary bulwark against Reichsfuehrer Hitler's estimated 800,000 armed men.

The developments as they affect Great Britain under the French security plan were hinted at both by France's and Great Britain's foreign secretaries.

Delbos recently said informally that "if Britain is ready to aid us in the case of unprovoked aggression, we are ready to help her in the same circumstances."

Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, at a luncheon last Friday honoring Premier Paul Van Zeeland, of Belgium, said "Belgium counts on our help were she a victim of unprovoked aggression."

The French government, alarmed by the recent Japanese-German and Japanese-German accord against France's military ally, Russia, was reported to be determined not to stand by idly while German diplomats forge a chain from Europe to Asia.

Blum Cabinet Not Safe.

Premier Leon Blum, striving to chart his nation's course in the international situation, was himself beset by storms which threatened to undermine his "popular front" government.

Following repeated Communist attacks centering on Socialist Blum's refusal to reverse his Spanish neutrality policy, Maurice Thorez, Communist secretary-general, indicated his party might desert Blum altogether.

The most conservative supporters of Blum's regime weighed the possibility of so-called "left" or "middle-of-the-road" liberals, replacing the Communists if Thores should make good his threat.

Other parliamentary observers meanwhile watched to see if the Communist threat might not act as a boomerang and result in increased support of Blum from other sections of his government.

The executive committee of the Leftist Radical-Socialist party meets in Paris December 11 to plan its future course against frequent Communist attacks.

Still adding to the perplexities of the Blum government were the spreading strikes, especially those involving the metallurgical workers.

Jules Jeanneney, president of the senate, was reported to have told Blum he must prevent these strikes because the inactive metal plants were delaying the increased national defense preparations.

ENGLAND IS RECEPTIVE TO FRENCH PROPOSAL.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Reliable indications tonight pointed to British acceptance of the reported French plan for a mutual assistance pact with England and Belgium, although Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the house of commons declared "his majesty's government has explicitly declared that it has no intention of dividing the world into conflicting camps."

Informal quarters said afterward his remark was aimed only at pacts of aggression.

These persons said the French alliance offer would be accepted with favor as compatible with the government's desire for defensive understandings to promote peace.

The proposed agreement, they said, would be purely defensive and therefore, not likely to "divide" Europe.

These observers recalled that such an agreement could come within the Locarno alignment which Britain seeks to enlarge.

Ignorant on Jap Treaty.

Eden had another rather difficult time of it in parliament today being made the target for repeated barbed criticisms.

He got along fairly well until the peppery M. E. Miss Ellen Wilkinson.

asked him whether he "did not think the time had arrived when it would be desirable to evacuate all the Spaniards from Spain and leave the other countries to fight it out."

The hall echoed with laughter as Eden merely stood and stared at him almost daily heckler.

Asked whether he knew of any military treaty between Germany and Japan, Eden declared his majesty's government was convinced there was no such secret treaty, and said he had no information that Italy had entered any agreement with Japan.

EDWARD DETERMINED TO WED WALLY—REPORT

to the king was omitted from the court circular.

2.—The cabinet is so alarmed about the king and Mrs. Simpson that it is said to have virtually abandoned critical foreign affairs, leaving them to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

On one of the first occasions when Mrs. Simpson's name appeared in the court circular it recorded her presence at a dinner to St. James' palace, at which Prime Minister and Mrs. Baldwin also were guests, as well as Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lingbergh.

Baldwin, in his conference with Atlee, was reported to have given evidence that a "common front" exists among Conservatives and Laborites in their attitude toward the royal romance and any hopes which Edward may cherish of marrying Mrs. Simpson.

Grave Crisis.

The conference also was said to have left no doubt that the Edward-Simpson affair has plunged Britain into one of the gravest constitutional crises in her history.

With veiled subtlety which left its real meaning obscure to the British public but nevertheless was significant, the said London Times in an editorial today suggested that "in any crisis that may arise, whether foreign or domestic . . . the house of commons may well prove itself what the country often has required at similar times during a long history but has seldom been given—a council of state which is able to demonstrate its solid strength."

Behind the editorial's ominous sentence intimating a council of state some saw a possibility that the king might be forced to abdicate if he persisted in his intention of marrying Mrs. Simpson.

It was understood that Mrs. Simpson is maintaining a complete silence about her attitude and has made it clear that any matrimonial issue the king may have do not come from her.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

"All right, Don Timoteo. Maybe you're right. Hope so. If you aren't, I'll sure catch hell. But... I think I know who he's after. And if he catches up with him, it may be just too bad."

"Who?" asked Don Timoteo.

"Rodrigo Gutierrez--called the Rattlesnake," said Chris. "And I'll tell you something more while I'm at it. Black Sam was part of a smuggling ring. Opium. Maybe other things. And I'm pretty well satisfied that the Rattlesnake was a sort of go-between Between Black Sam--and maybe other people--and Mexico."

"But--Rodrigo worked for Don Fernando, didn't he? Off and on?"

The deputy sheriff tried to read behind the old man's eyes, but there was nothing there, he told himself, save curiosity.

"Yeah, off and on," he said. "Of course, one never knows what a fellow like that is up to. Naturally Don Fernando never suspected."

"Well, I should hope not," said Don Timoteo, and smiled. "Especially as he's going to be my son-in-law day after tomorrow."

Chris Drake started to speak, checked himself.

"Well, so--long," he said, abruptly, and strode away.

He went to Rancho La Espanola, inquired for Don Fernando.

"Don Fernando," said a black velvet fellow, "has gone to San Diego. Or maybe Tijuana," the fellow laughed, "for a drink."

Deputy Drake cursed internally.

When he took French leave of Rancho Paloma, hurried on foot to San Felix, where he hired a powerful car in the name of the law. He, too, hit the King's highway for the border.

That evening Don Timoteo again sat by the doorway smoking, but now in the evening shadows, watching the sun go down.

To him came Rose, a puzzled frown on her forehead. She sat down, lighted a cigaret, was silent for a space; but at last she spoke.

"Is Pablo really Christopher Drake, the deputy sheriff?" she asked. "I overheard this afternoon."

"Yes," said Don Timoteo. "Chris is one of the best at playing Mex."

"But--but what is he doing here? I mean--at La Paloma? He works there, doesn't he? I mean--pretends to work. Is he--is he--"

She could not go on.

"After O'Hara," said Don Timoteo, watching without appearing to do so, the girl's perturbed face. Should he probe--or shouldn't he? Was the girl as content with this approaching marriage as she had said she was? Or did she really care for Shane O'Hara, and not for Don Fernando?

"Naturally Mr. O'Hara is under some suspicion," he said at last. "But man would be. Chris is no hothead. But he's got his job to do."

"And--Mr. O'Hara has gone away. Without Chris knowing it?"

"For a moment the girl was silent. Then--

"I don't think Mr. O'Hara is the man to run away," she said. "But--of course I don't know. I think it's more likely he's--"

She paused. "But why guess. Mr. O'Hara is nothing to me."

"Sure about that, Rose?" Don Timoteo asked the question at her as he might fire a bullet. The girl stiffened, flipped her cigaret onto the grass, rose.

"If he was," she said, "I shouldn't be marrying Don Fernando the day after tomorrow." She swept away.

"I wonder though," Don Timoteo asked himself. "I wonder. I wonder."

Don Timoteo was pretty shrewd. There was in him the wisdom of 80 years. He foresaw that there was a chance--just a chance--that the marriage would not take place. Not that marriage. And who knows but that he would have been justified in his thought if a girl in Baltimore had not at that moment been filling a telegram addressed to Shane O'Hara, Rancho Soledad, San Felix, San Diego County, California?

And if the telephone girl at San Felix had not been hurrying to get through her day's work in order to meet her boy friend--and so had accepted to seal the message she had taken down by phone from San Diego, San Felix having no telephone office of its own.

The message was delivered--with substantial charges--by a boy on a bicycle.

Rose took it--after first refusing, in her mind, to do so--and paid the boy. "What is it?" asked her mother, in the dining room, where they had just finished the meal.

"A telegram for Mr. O'Hara," she answered quietly. Laid it on the buffet.

"I wonder," said her mother, "if we oughtn't to read it--see if it's anything important. Maybe send it to him."

"It's his business, not ours, mother," said Rose.

But the matter was on Mrs. Delane's mind. She recalled times when a telegram had gone to someone, and waited, and terrible things had happened as a result.

"I'm going to see what it is," she said at last. "It might be awfully important to him."

Mrs. Delane rose and went to the buffet. "Why, it's not sealed, anyhow," she said. Removing the message from its cover, she read swiftly. Then she threw a quick look at Rose--slipped the message back into the envelope--knew that Rose had seen that look--was embarrassed. "I must go to the kitchen now," she said. "You were right, Rose, it wasn't anything of importance."

But Rose knew that her mother fibbed. Knew also, that the message concerned herself, in some manner, though how she could not quite guess.

Yet--there was a certain Miss Billie Porter in Baltimore--and Shane O'Hara was engaged to her, even while he made love to Rose Delane of Rancho Soledad.

Without a word she rose, went to the buffet, read the message.

Aloud:

"I've got to have you after all, Shane," she read. "Meet me at San Diego airport Thursday morning, the eighth. Billie."

White-faced, she lay the message down, looked once at Don Timoteo--then walked from the room.

The Rattlesnake entered the cave, gun in hand. His face was a picture of evil triumphant. Shane and Jose saw the yellow glint in his eye, on the smooth blue barrel of the automatic in his hand. So death stalked.

It was Shane O'Hara to whom he strode, glaring.

To whom he said, rasped of voice, poking the nose of the blue steel pistol against his breast:

"I want those papers, hombre, may pronto."

Shane O'Hara, Irish-American, said, and laughed. "You speak pretty good English, don't you? As for the papers--your confession--I haven't got them. Little snake. Look and see."

For that, the Rattlesnake seared him across the cheek with the end of his pistol. Dark hands made hurried search of coat and vest--and of trousers. But no papers rewarded his fingers.

"I told you so," said Shane. And then he looked at the Rattlesnake as an American might look--straight and defying and rather dominant. "Look you, my brown bird, if you pull the trigger of that little gun, you hang. Hang, sure as there is a devil in hell."

"But--but the confession," said the Rattlesnake. "You--you--"

Shane O'Hara laughed.

"The confession, my friend, is where you will never see it. Unless--" he blinked against the pistol nose--"unless you set us free. In that case--it is yours. Get me, kid--it is yours."

That sank in.

"Where is it?" demanded the Rattlesnake hoarsely. "Where is it, you Yankee pig? Tell me, or I'll kill you. Again Shane O'Hara laughed. "I'll tell you, Rattlesnake," he said. "For a price."

"I think," said the Rattlesnake slowly, "I think--I will kill you--now."

"If you do, your confession goes into the hands of Don Fernando," said Shane, and had to laugh again at the dazed look on the Rattlesnake's face. "Unless you let me loose, he'll certainly get it. And then what?"

The Rattlesnake's head told him the answer.

The face of Don Fernando rose in his mind's eye. Behind a gun. Shane O'Hara, playing with life and death, watched the Mexican with eyes and mind sharpened by the importance of the stakes. The only possible thing which could save his life and that of Jose was that the Rattlesnake did not find his confession. Shane knew, as certainly as he knew that two plus two equals four, that had the brown hands found that paper, the Rattlesnake's pistol would have instantly begun its death rattling. Death for himself and Jose.

Continued Tomorrow.

Sibley Traces Marxian Influence In Recent American 'Experiments'

Judge Tells Rotarians Social Security Act Is Most Daring Step in New Deal Legislation, Showing Tendency to Socialism.

The industrialization of America furnishes "much food for serious thought" among those who are inclined to hail Karl Marx as a prophet. Judge Samuel H. Sibley told members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon yesterday, but "the unfairness or untruth of many of the positions taken by Marx is apparent."

Those New Deal acts which are classed as social legislation came in for some comment by the judge who discussed briefly the rise and fall of some of the modern American experiments in legislation as he declared:

"Nowadays, the sense of property and obligation is much weakened and the coherence of the workers is increasing. Concessions and changes are necessary to avert the storm. The social security act is the most daring step in this direction and how it will end, I do not know. It is the nearest to Communism that we have approached."

Discussing New Deal acts, Judge Sibley pointed out:

"The NIRA and the AAA were declared unconstitutional in certain of their efforts, and the bankruptcy act was declared void as to moratoriums on mortgages. Monetary and banking laws have been upheld, the national securities act is still riding lustily without having been tested fully; there have been no attacks on the home owners' loans, because nearly everyone is glad to get a loan and this has stimulated business. No successful attack was made on the FERA because it was a huge spending bill for public good. The social security act, however, is the most sweeping of all and it tends to give the individual citizen the most relief, even though this is done largely through contributions from the individual states."

"We are face to face with this tendency to adopt many of the remedies suggested by Marxism but it cannot be said that our Socialism is complete. We have not adopted the principles of Socialism or Communism that call for a community seizure of all property. Our American tendency toward Socialism does not call for mass ownership of property."

Man of One Job. Today's industrialized world faces the problem of the working man who has no means of subsistence unless he can work at the one small job at which he was trained, the judge said. Once a worker loses the job for which he was trained he has nothing else, he pointed out, as he contrasted this condition with the life of the early American who hewed out a farm for himself and his family and always had some means of subsistence.

The capitalist of today, the judge indicated, has developed into far more of a logical thinker and a humanitarian than Marx foresaw.

"Cotton factories in Georgia," the judge said, "have worked for years and are working today for the betterment of the workers. They have built better houses; have sought to teach better standards of living; they have built swimming pools and recreation grounds. The worker has good hospital services; they have automobiles and paved highways."

Consequently, said the judge, the picture of industrialized America today is not as dismal as Marx forecast the world scene a century ago.

"It is a problem, however," said the judge, "and our efforts of working for the masses today should be studied thoughtfully."

PATY WILL TAKE POST WITH ROSENWALD FUND

Emory Dean Granted Leave To Become Director of Fellowships.

Raymond R. Paty, dean of men at Emory University, has been granted a year's leave of absence to accept a position as director of fellowships of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, according to an announcement yesterday by President Harvey W. Cox, of Emory.

The establishment of two programs of annual fellowships by the fund, continuing the negro fund and establishing a group of fellowships for southern students and leaders, was announced yesterday in Chicago by Edwin R. Embree, president of the fund. The southern fellowships were established because of the scarcity of funds and opportunities for study in the south, Embree reported.

In addition to Paty, members of the committee awarding the fellowships, which will average $1,500, are W. W. Alexander, director of the Commission on Interracial Co-operation of Atlanta and acting director of the settlement administration, Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, Henry Allen Moe, director of the Guggenheim fellowship fund of New York and Edwin Embree, president of the fund.

Paty will assume his new position this week. Professor E. H. Rice, becoming acting dean of men in his absence, according to the announcement. Mr. Paty was on leave of absence last year as Georgia director of the National Youth Administration.

INVESTMENT BANKERS TO MEET IN AUGUSTA

Atlantans To Leave Today for Jubilee Convention of Important Group.

The Investment Bankers' Association of America will hold its twenty-fifth annual convention and silver jubilee in Augusta beginning tomorrow and closing Sunday. The Atlanta delegation, which is charged with important responsibilities in the entertainment plans of the southern hospitality committee, will leave this afternoon in automobiles to attend the meeting.

Four or five special trains will convey the body of delegates, numbering between 800 and 1,000, to the convention city. The Chicago train, on which delegates from tributary and intermediate points will assemble, is scheduled to pass through Atlanta early tomorrow morning. Special cars from Los Angeles, Houston and New Orleans will be hooked on to this private train as it passes through Atlanta.

The program is elaborate both in its entertainment and business features, dealing particularly with questions of autonomous self-government in relation to the supervision and regulation exercised by the Securities and Exchange Commission since its creation by congress.

The personnel of the Atlanta delegation includes J. Fleming Settle, chairman-elect of the southern group; Hagood Clarke, retiring chairman of the southern group; James D. Robinson Jr., secretary-treasurer-elect of the southern group; J. Fraser Durrett, Henry B. Tompkins, Joseph L. Morris, Henry W. Grady Jr., James A. Brown, Clement A. Evans, Hugh D. ## BEER SELLER FINED Employment of Minors Brings $27 Levy.

The drive against operators of beer and wine dispensaries employing minors resulted in a fine of $27 being imposed yesterday morning by Recorder John L. Cone against a man listed as C. D. Nichols, 28, of 448 Fraser street, S. E.

Detectives John Chankshaw and J. B. King, who arrested Nichols on a charge of disorderly conduct, employing minors in a beer establishment, testified the defendant employed a 12-year-old white boy and a 14-year-old negro boy. Nichols paid the fine.

Display of New 'Autos on Parade' Draws Throngs to Local Event

Dealers Report Keen Interest and Numerous Sales as Atlantans Inspect 1937 Models in 'At Home' Show on Auto Row.

Atlanta's "at home," automobile show opened yesterday morning with a public response that dealers declared to be little short of remarkable. Every dealer on the local auto row reported steady streams of visitors to his showrooms to look over the new models for 1937 and all told of numbers of sales closed before the day was over.

Sponsored by The Constitution and the local dealers, this year's show is being held in the showrooms, owing to the lack of a suitable building for displaying the wide range of models in Atlanta. Titled "Autos on Parade," the show becomes a regular parade of smart new styles as crowds are transported from one showroom to another.

Dealers have arranged transportation for anyone who desires it, not only from home to the particular showroom, but from one establishment to another and back home again. Each dealer is helping the people who come to see his displays to go to the next dealer's place of business, in order that every make of car may be inspected.

All dealers are remaining open until 10 o'clock each night this week and, before that hour last night, a summary of reports from auto row indicated that this week will probably go down as the biggest week for total automobile sales in the history of Atlanta.

The people are coming in to see the new models and many of them are remaining to buy.

Here's the Modern Way to Help END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warm cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1: Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2: Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

During the night, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets. This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Huskies' Rose Bowl Foe To Be Named 'Sometime This Week'

Until last year when the WPA planted some roses here and you about the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, there were no roses at all on, in or about the bowl.

Except on game day. When some roses were stuck around the rim and the sponsors wore some and a few gentlemen with roses noses appeared.

But now, the roses bloom there. Real roses. A Roosevelt administration made possible a real Rose Bowl.

The first Tournament of Roses game was played on January 1, 1902. The Michigan Juggernaut, with 15 players, a manager and a coach, went out and murdered Stanford. The game was stopped before the last half was done. Not because the field judge missed the time by six minutes as he did at Athens last week. But because Stanford didn't have any more players.

The late Dan McGugin, who played with Michigan in that game, used to chuckle about it. There was so much dust on the field they had difficulty breathing when the going was fast.

After that football game the committee tried chariot races in which big rugged boys with wigs on their chests stood up in imitation Roman chariots and yelled and cracked whips at the horses pulling them. This didn't go over so well.

The original plan, of course, was conceived by a smart publicity man. The idea was that gentlemen with money enough to retire, would be hugging their base burners in Iowa, Kansas, New York and Vermont snows and would read about a parade of flower-covered floats in the morning and a football game in the afternoon.

And would draw money out of the bank, sell out their effects and come out to Pasadena and buy real estate, build and live there for the remainder of their lives.

And the plan worked. Pasadena is a realtor's dream. There are no slums there—no signs of slums. And there is very little crime and tourists come there to see the homes and the grounds.

THE TOURNAMENT OF ROSES.

The Tournament of Roses annually is witnessed by 4,000,000 people. And that is a lot of people. Some 90,000 or 100,000 of them see the football game in the afternoon.

Last year surplus requests for 180,000 seats were tearfully returned to their senders. There wasn't room at the Rose Bowl. The mornings there frequently are brisk. And the Tournament of Roses often is witnessed by spectators in overcoats.

But some of the girls, representing the Spirit of Alameda or maybe the Heart of the Berkeley Rose, or maybe The Beach at Longview, wear very little bathing costumes or maybe some filmy bits of clothing.

They look very cold and those afflicted with goose bumps do not look very comfortable. But they are very pretty—the girls and the floats. Literally millions of flowers are built to represent all sorts of things—scenes from history, waterfalls, mountains, great birds, castles, and so on.

I recall a float from Old Baldy, which is a mountain, had a replica of the mountain in flowers and at the base of it was real snow. And beautiful girls in bathing suits heaved real snowballs into the crowd.

It's quite a tournament, the Tournament of Roses.

THE ROSE BOWL RECORDS.

There are a lot of queries going about our town asking who won in the Rose Bowl and by what score.

The south with four victories, one tie and one defeat in six appearances at Pasadena, has the greatest record of any section of this nation of ours. The south first appeared there in the 1926 game and this year another southern team will be named as the seventh southern Rose Bowl contender in 40 years. Which isn't bad. And which indicates how far football has come along in our section of the land of the free.

GRID PRESSURE.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Although the variety football season has concluded, Coach Frank J. Murray, of the Marquette Golden Avalanche, finds that the pressure is still on. Murray faces a busy round of after-school talks and has current book-ings at Peoria, Ill., Milwaukee, Wisconsin Rapids, Sherwood, Green Bay and Appleton, Wis.

"IRON MAN."

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Playing 60 minutes of every game except eight against Wisconsin, five against St. Louis and three against Mississippi, Captain Ray (Buz) Buivid, halfback, was the "iron man" of Marquette University's 1936 football team. But several other Hilltoppers, prompted by the general lack of reserves, played almost as much.

SMITHIE SQUAD ENDS HARD WORK FOR LONDON TILT

Light Drill Carded Today; Team Leaves Wednesday for Jacksonville

Tech High completed its rough scrimmages of the year Monday afternoon in preparation for a post-season game Thursday night with Landon High in Jacksonville, Fla. It was one of the best scrimmages of the year with the variety on the offense noted by the fans.

A light workout will be held this afternoon, after which the team will leave early Wednesday morning by motor. Another light workout will be held in Jacksonville Wednesday afternoon, provided the team arrives in time.

Coach Tolbert was undecided late Monday as to his starting lineup, but it is likely that the same team which faced Boys' High two weeks ago will start. Only Williams, who suffered a broken leg in the Boys' High game, will be missing when the whistle blows.

A full squad of some 26 or 28 players will make the trip, and those players who will face Landon High will be named after the practice this afternoon.

A lineup of Timberlake and Plaster, ends; Wilson and Simpson, tackles; Watson and Delaney, guards; Captain Culpepper, center; and Ellis, Hale, Phillips and Harrison, in the backfield, saw plenty of service in the Monday afternoon scrimmage.

That same lineup is most likely to start the game against Landon High Thursday night in Jacksonville.

Another backfield of Wallace, quarterback; Allen and Pair, halfbacks; and Stanford, fullback, also worked considerably behind the line on offense. The reserve backfield started most of the games last year but was beaten out of their places by the present combination which started against Boys' High.

Tech High will depend largely on their forward passing game for grounds. The forward line also will come in for much use and should the aerial attacks fail, Bobby Pair and Frankie Allen, the speed merchants on the squad, will be sent in to run wide around the ends.

Purple Gridmen Join Court Squad.

Three players from Boys' High basketball team of last year opened the third week of practice Monday afternoon on the Henry Grady court. Forrest Taylor, Bob Smith and Tenge are the veterans around whom Coach Johnston will build his 1936 team.

Icky Orenstein is a member of the football squad and having suffered two severe knee injuries this season, it is likely that he will not be in shape until after the Christmas holidays.

Other members of the football squad are expected to join the basketball practice as soon as possible.

A large group of youngsters have been out two weeks trying to locate the baskets and Coach Johnston was very much pleased as another week was started Monday.

Tech High will delay its basketball until after the football team returns home from its post-season game at Jacksonville Thursday night.

Purple Gridmen Enjoy Off Day.

Boys' High's football team had an off day Monday afternoon following its first defeat in three years Thursday afternoon in Miami, Fla. The Purples lost, 7 to 0, and also suffered the loss of three left halfbacks in the first quarter.

Dan Greer suffered a broken leg. Icky Orenstein hurt an already injured knee and Carling Dinkler Jr. had a knee twisted.

Coach Doyal has ordered practice resumed this afternoon, although the work will be very light for several days.

Boys' High is awaiting a decision next Sunday afternoon at Augusta, regarding a protest filed by Lanier High against Riverside. Should the protest be sustained, Boys' High will play Lanier High, but should it be overruled, Riverside will automatically be declared the G. I. A. A. champions for 1936.

MAX SCHMELING WILL SAIL SOON

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(UP)—Max Schmeling, of Germany, former heavyweight champion, called the New York State Athletic Commission today that he is leaving Germany immediately for the United States to attend a commission meeting December 11.

It was believed Schmeling was coming to assume himself that he would be guaranteed a title fight next summer with James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion.

The commission last week ordered the co-promoters, Madison Square Garden and Twentieth Century Club, to sign contracts for a Schmeling-Braddock fight on December 11. It also called Schmeling either to appear in person or delegate someone with power of attorney to act for him.

MORRIS BROWN DRILLS FOR GAME

Complete secrecy surrounds the Morris Brown training camp. Coaches Lockhart and Graves drill their squad for the most important game of the year Saturday with Tuskegee Institute, for the game will decide the undisputed colored Southeastern Intercollegiate Conference championship for 1936.

Rumors that the coaching staff had reinstated Matthew Harmon and Red Hadley, two backfield aces, were confirmed by Acting Head Coach Joe Lockhart. They were let out for an informal training drill.

Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets, enjoying a 10-day rest before beginning work for their December 26th engagement with California's Berkeley Bears at Grant field, will be the guests of the Rotary Club of Atlanta Monday, December 7.

The Rotarians have entertained football squads for many years at the completion of their grid schedule and plan an attractive program for Monday.

Fred Kaufman is in charge of the committee for arrangements.

Diz To Cheer 'Gators, Serve as Water Boy

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean, the St. Louis pitcher, is going to yell for Florida's Gators when they meet Mississippi State on the gridiron here Saturday.

In fact, "Diz" plans to take an active interest in the proceedings. At the very least, he will be assistant water boy for the Gators. Maybe "Diz" will try his hand at chucking the football a little, just to show the crowd some college may have lost an All-American fullback when he decided to join the army.

Vidalia Welcome Plans Delayed by Dan Cupid

Athletic Star-a "Baseball Tourist," Began Pro Career in 1931.

By Ralph McGill.

Cupid, the little cuss, interfered with the welcome-home program which the town of Vidalia was preparing for Wally Moses, Georgia boy who made good in the major leagues.

And after looking at the photograph above, in which he is pictured with the future Mrs. Wally Moses, I am sure the city fathers of Vidalia will forgive him and prepare for even a larger welcome-home celebration. Mr. Moses has gone and robbed the movies of a girl who would have decorated them with a lot of beauty.

Wally Moses, who was christened Wallace Moses Jr., on the day after his birth at Vidalia, Ga., on October 8, 1911, started his baseball career at Augusta, where another Georgia boy had his star. That was a fellow named Ty Cobb.

BEGAN PRO CAREER. Moses began his pro career there in 1931 but was sent almost immediately to Elmira in the New York-Pennsylvania league.

He has been, or was, quite a tourist as the ball players term the ladies who get about. He was with two clubs in 1931. And in 1932 he was with three, playing with Monroe in the Cotton States league and with Tyler and Galveston in the Texas league.

That was the year Tyler had to take over a franchise to keep the league going.

In 1934 he was with Galveston the entire season and batted .316 for his best average of his career. To that date.

IN A NEW OUTFIELD. The very next year found him in the Philadelphia outfield in 85 games, with Connie Mack looking upon him fondly as one of his best men.

He batted .325 in that season. Last year he was with the Athletics all season and will go back to them in the spring with his cheering section along with him.

He is a popular boy and when finally he does appear at his home town of Vidalia for the welcome-home event, there will be none of its zest missing because of the delay.

POST-SEASON TILT. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Nov. 30.—(AP)—St. Petersburg High school's football team will play Marblehead, Mass. High school in a post-season intercollegiate game Christmas Day, it was announced today by school officials. The Marblehead team will also play Miami Senior High in Miami December 18.

33 Bears Begin Trek To Atlanta on Dec. 20

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Thirty-three University of California football players were named today by Coach Leonard "Stub" Allison to make the trip to Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech, December 26.

The squad will leave December 20. Practice at Tulane field, New Orleans, December 23, is scheduled.

The squad:

Ends—Henry Sparks, Willard Dolman, Perry Schwartz, Thomas Ray, Harlow Bennett, Dick Johnston, Ned Thomas. Tackles—Dave de Varona, Eugene McAttee, Ray Nordstrom, Milton Pollock, Bill Seal. Guards—Claude Evans, Ray Hanford, Bill Hanford, Bob Gilbert, Vard Stockton, Angelo Reginate, Al Sousa. Centers—Bob Erwig, Stan McCaffery. Quarterbacks—John Meek, Ray Winterbottom. Halfbacks—Vic Bottari, Bill Archer, Morris Pollock, Floyd Blower, George Cornell, Sam Chapman, Perry Thomas. Fullbacks—Dave Johnson, Jack Howard, Ken Cottog.

Tech Topped Foes In Total 1st Downs

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Georgia Tech's erratic football team did right well this season—in some respects.

The Engineers, defeated five times and tied once in 10 games, bettered all opponents in first downs and all except one in gaining yards. The catch in this is that their defense yielded 185 points of its 238 this far.

Totaling 150 first downs against 72, it failed to score only in a tie with Vanderbilt. The Engineers, trimmed twice by one point and again by four within 15 days, rattled off 3,525 yards against 1,926. Only Vandy outgained them—by 16 yards.

At the University of Georgia, December 26.

A.P. Places Five Duke Grid Stars On All-Southern

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Football coaches, scouts and sports editors looked over a huge variety squad of more than 400 players today and selected five Duke University Blue Devils for the 1936 Associated Press all-Southern Conference eleven.

The experts were unanimous in their choice of Clarence (Ace) Parker for the backfield and thereby established the spectacular Portsmouth, Va., youth as captain of the mythical team. The gifted Parker also made the all-Southern in 1934 and 1935.

End Lee Muth missed four games; Guard Mike Czerpach missed one, and Fullback Ward Cuff was out of two, but otherwise the Hilltop regulars were available throughout the arduous 1936 campaign.

'BAMA OR L. S. U. NEARLY CERTAIN TO BE SELECTED

Eckman To Confer With Tournament of Roses Committee.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The Tournament of Roses football committee was "just as puzzled as the fans" tonight over who will play the University of Washington in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

In Seattle rumor had it that "contact" had been made with some eastern opponent for the Huskies, but university men wouldn't affirm it. Talk centered around Louisiana State, Alabama and Pittsburgh.

But Ray Eckman, athletic director of the University of Washington, insisted nothing would be announced definitely until he has conferred with the Tournament of Roses committee here.

"Nothing will be announced until after I have conferred with Stanford officials and the committee," he said in Seattle today. "Some time this week we will make a formal announcement."

He explained his planned meeting with Stanford officials because "I want to get the benefit of their long experience in Rose Bowl matters." The Stanford Indians have represented the west in the Pasadena game the last three years.

ENJOY A REST.

The Washington Huskies, enjoying a vacation at present, will go back into training December 12 and probably will come here December 22.

C. Hal Reynolds, chairman of the tournament football committee, explained today why the western team always is picked from and by the Pacific Coast conference.

The committee, he said, asked the conference's co-operation when the game was established 20 years ago. "There is no written contract, not even a verbal contract, between the Tournament of Roses Association and the conference in staging this game. There never has been anything but a gentlemen's agreement."

"Yet the conference has made it possible to hold this game and to build our bowl."

"Almost every year the strongest team on the coast is a member of the Pacific Coast conference, but every five or six years some other school comes along with one that looks pretty good."

"STICKS BY FRIENDS." "It may be very good, but we've been going along with the conference for years, and just because some new-comer happens along and looks a little flashier, well, we don't intend to ditch our old friend."

"It might be pointed out that the Rose Bowl isn't a game, it has been billed as a championship affair of any description."

We simply announced it as an inter-sectional game between two of the outstanding teams of the nation, one from the west, the other from another section of the country."

BIG KARL DAVIS LEARNS TRICKS

Big Karl Davis, who meets Dorr Roche in that much-discussed return bout at the Atlanta Athletic Club tonight, is a striking exception to the theory—"you can't teach an old dog new tricks."

While the Ohio giant is only 30, and is considered young as wrestlers go, he has been grappling for eight years, ever since he left Ohio University, where he was an All-American tackle.

But it was not until a few weeks ago that Davis, one of the leading villains and rough men in the game, decided he would have to learn something about the scientific side of the game. It seems that he happened to be in a section of the country where rough stuff was "out."

That Davis has done a good job of picking up the finer points of the game was shown when he was winning his match with Roche. While Karl continued his villainous ways and was in no sense a clean matman, it was observed several times during his match with the stillful Roche that Davis, when in tight spots, resorted to newly acquired holds. And he did exceedingly well.

In fact, strange as it seems, Roche actually had the better of the rough warfare with the notorious bad man, Davis' face streaming blood almost all the way as Dorr landed vicious wallops.

It was one of the wildest matches ever staged here. Davis winning a disputed decision in a return match has the fans steamed up.

Friday's semi-final will send the resourceful Indian, Blue Sun Jennings, into action against Arizona Irish bruiser, Tommy O'Toole.

The opener will pit Babe Zaharias, of the famous Zaharias wrestling family, against Cliff Theide, of California.

Penn Gives Harman A 3-Year Contract

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Harvey J. Harman, head football coach at the University of Pennsylvania, who announced before the start of the season "I am ready to take all the blame or some of the credit for whatever happens this year," was reappointed today for a term of three years.

H. Jamison Swarts, director of athletics, said Harman's official title will continue as "assistant professor of physical education." Swarts did not reveal what salary Harman will receive.

Hinkle Will Lead 1937 Vandy Eleven

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Carl Hinkle, 19-year-old son of a Methodist minister, was elected 1937 captain of the Vanderbilt Commodores by acclamation at the football banquet tonight.

Clifford (Baby) Ray, 300-pound tackle, was named alternate-captain.

Hinkle, who succeeded Dick Prideman as the Vandy leader, was one of the south's finest centers this season, playing the full 90 minutes in all Vanderbilt's seven games.

His team is in Nashville.

Gophers First in Final Poll

OLD SECOND, PITT IS THIRD, ALABAMA 4TH

Unbeaten and Untied Santa Clara Ranked in Sixth Place.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Minnesota's Gophers held their place as America's No. 1 college football team by a decisive margin over Louisiana State, champion of the deep south, in the final national ranking poll conducted by the Associated Press for 1936.

Results compiled this week in the seventh country-wide consensus reveal Minnesota the choice among 25 out of 35 experts. Nine placed L. S. U. at the top of their lists. One first-place ballot was cast for Santa Clara, the nation's only major unbeaten and untied team.

The final rankings with points tallied on a basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

FIRST TEN	Points
1. Minnesota	230
2. Louisiana State	209
3. Pittsburgh	187
4. Alabama	176
5. Washington	175
6. Santa Clara	168
7. Northwestern	167
8. Notre Dame	166
9. Nebraska	165
10. Pennsylvania	164

SECOND TEN	Points
11. Duke	153
12. Yale	152
13. Dartmouth	151
14. Michigan	150
15. Fordham	149
16. Texas Christian	148
17. Tennessee	147
18. Wake Forest	146
19. Marquette	145
20. Princeton	144

The chief shakeups this week, with the regular season closed for all but two of the "top 10," find Pittsburgh displacing Alabama in third place and Washington, the far west Rose Bowl choice, hurdling its coast rival, Santa Clara, for fifth position.

It is interesting to note, in connection with pending post-season pairings, that Louisiana State is rated tougher opposition than Alabama, reported to have the "inside track" for the big money Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The ranking list clearly points to the best intercollegiate matches, with Pittsburgh a heavy choice to play in the Sugar Bowl, at New Orleans, against the southern team that does not travel to Pasadena to meet Washington. Big Ten regulations prevent Minnesota from considering any post-season competition.

Fordham lost prestige at the close of the season, falling from third place to 15th within the past two weeks, but the east generally made a strong showing, placing seven teams among the 20 listed in the final ranking. Pennsylvania, Yale and Dartmouth represented the "Ivy league."

The middle west, however, dominated the top 10, with four of its five entries in the first half of the list. The south gained four places, the southwest and far west two each.

Coach Enright Takes Over Cagers

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 30.—Coach Rex Enright assumed charge of the Georgia Bulldogs basketball squad of about 20 players this afternoon. In his absence as backfield tutor of the football team, Captain Charlie Harold had been directing the workout. None of the gridmen who also will compete for the cage quintet were on hand for the workout. They will rest up several days.

Although Athletic Director H. J. Stegeman has announced that the schedule will not be released until shortly after the Southern Conference meeting in December, it is understood several games have already been decided upon. Coach Enright said he thought the schedule would open January 8 and 9 with a pair of games against the University of Chattanooga here. Four contests are also booked with Florida as have two been agreed upon with Georgia Tech.

Football players expected to report sometime this week include: Harry Harman, Coach Enright's assistant, and forward, Richard, is handicapped by an ankle injury. Jack Farren, promising and rangy center, joined the squad about a week ago after playing end on the Red Devil grid squad.

105,013 Persons Saw Army-Navy Struggle

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Naval Academy records disclosed today that at least 105,013 persons saw the Army-Navy football game Saturday in Philadelphia.

A total of 102,500 tickets were sold for the game. In addition the Navy issued 2,423 passes to persons working within the stadium.

Down the Alleys

Interest is building around the important centers of duckpin in the coming national intercollegiate tournament that is scheduled to be bowled during the Easter holidays of 1937.

The tournament, which was the idea of John S. Black, and is being promoted by George L. Jackson, is being held at the National City Club in New York City. The biggest move that officials of the national pin body have made since its organization. Many cities are bidding for the tournament site. Atlanta is favored.

Ralph Cutter and two Atlanta pin stars, placed "in the money" in the North Carol. tournament at Durham, N. C., last Saturday. Cutter placed 1,207 for the 10 games. Bill McCadam won $5 for the high net, among non-winners, in the second block with a 410 series.

The big award and title of the contest was won by George Salom, who with a total of 1,207 for the 10 games. Sam Swann, of Richmond, Va., was runner-up with 1,206. Bill Black, Raleigh, 1,203; P. E. Payne, of Greensboro, 1,202; T. Milnes, of Raleigh, 1,201, and J. T. Biddle, of Greensboro, 1,200.

Prospects for a big tournament for the national organization, with Norfolk, Va., as the site this year, are most encouraging. Miami, Fla., has been chosen as the site for women's teams and Augusta, Ga., a team of men and a team of women. It is the first time that either of these centers has had an entry in the big meet.

TEN YEARS LATER.

A broad-shouldered young fellow sat in the Sesquiennial stadium at Philadelphia Saturday, looking down on the field. There were over 100,000 people present, and everyone was talking about the size of the crowd. Oddly enough, he had been one of two men to draw an even bigger crowd—plus a far larger gate—in this same spot 10 years before.

And this was the first time he had been back in the 10 intervening years to the battlefield that had given him the heavyweight championship.

The name, of course, was Gene Tunney. And Tunney looked to be in just about as good shape in 1936 as he was in 1926, the only change being an addition of some 8 or 10 pounds.

The Dempsey Fight.

I asked Gene what his first thoughts were as he looked down on the field where he had stood 10 years ago. "I was thinking," he said, "of how big the crowd looked at this game—over 100,000—and yet remembered that over 120,000 were packed around the ring in the rain and darkness of that night in 1926. And these 120,000 or more had paid in $1,895,700.10 to see me fight."

"Did you have any particular memories of that fight when I came back to the same stadium?" I asked.

"That was a pretty important night for me," Gene said, "and I naturally got to thinking about what happened 10 years ago. In the first place, I remember that I felt dead sure of winning that night because I had paid so much more attention to boxing than I had to anything else. I knew I was going to win. In the second place, I paid to see me fight. I knew I was going to win. In the third place, I knew I was going to win. In the fourth place, I knew I was going to win. ## Nino Martini Pauses in Atlanta On Way to Columbus for Concert

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.
Nino Martini, famous tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was in Atlanta yesterday morning just long enough to have breakfast with a few press representatives and Marvin McDonald, en route to Columbus, where he sang in concert last night. As dashing as ever, he was quite gay over being in the south again, and spoke with keen animation over his two concerts in Atlanta, in joint recital with Gladys Swarthout, on January 15 and 16. He would have made a fine model for some men's fashion magazine, for he had on the finest kind of black pin-striped English broadcloth suit, worn with a black shirt and white tie. I asked him if the "Black Shirt" had any significance (he is a native of Italy, you know), and he laughed and said, "Yes, very much significance, especially around the collar when one is traveling on the train."

The concert in Columbus was the 14th in a tremendously busy season of 50 such appearances. The season also includes 10 or 12, perhaps more, appearances with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and 26 radio programs, of which he already has broadcast 10. At the close of the musical season in May, he returns to Hollywood to make another movie or two.

Martini spoke warmly of his love for Hollywood, voicing his delight in the climate of California, his interest in the art of making movies, and the opportunity that it affords him to settle down in one place for a time without so much continuous travel. This he made known with a sort of blushing countenance and such a twinkle in his eye that we began to suspect some reason behind all these very good notes that attract him to Hollywood, and finally I managed to pin him down to an admission. Of course, you have guessed it—it's a heart interest! And perhaps it's not fair to tell, but the lady who holds his devoted attention at the time is Elissa Landi!

Jesse Lasky "discovered" Martini in Italy and brought him to America in 1929. He was under contract with Paramount for a year then, making one or two movie shorts, but the depression came along about the time, and he returned to his native Italy.

He came back to America in 1931, and became a member of the Philadelphia Opera Company, but it was his radio appearance that really brought him into fame and won him a place not only in the "Met" but also in the hearts of the music-loving public. Martini told us of the new "Violenta" who will take the role that Bori had so long held with such supremacy in "La Traviata" at the Met. The new soprano's name, coincidentally, is Bori—Nina Bori, a native of Belgium. Martini says her voice is so lovely that her success is assured, and he anticipates co-starring with her in this opera perhaps the latter part of December.

Miguel Sandoval, Martini's accompanist, remembered by Atlantans for his superb artistry in Martini's concert here two years ago, is with Martini on the trip, and modestly admitting when we questioned him, being the composer of some of the music in the film, "Gay Desperado."

Others in the cast are William Best, Gordon Hart, Gordon Elliott, Virginia Brissac, Charles Wilson, Joseph Crehan, and Mary Treen. ## NANCY PAGE

Want To Frame This Star?

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

"Perhaps you think this star should be called framed instead of 'chained.' You might be right at that, although you will find when you put the pieces together that the bands of framing material really form a chain. This is one quilt which I think you will like better if you make it all-over one."

Nancy Page was speaking to the members of the Nancy Page quilt club. They had stolen a little time out of a busy holiday season to look at Nancy's interesting blocks. They clipped the picture and directions from the paper. Then they sent for the sheet with its pieces ready for tracing onto a cardboard pattern.

The amount of material needed to make a quilt varies with the size. A double bed size quilt should be 106 inches long and 80 inches wide. The three-quarter bed takes a quilt of the same length but not so great a width and the twin bed is still narrower, about 72 inches when finished.

There is little waste in cutting these straight pieces. If you are making the star and the bands of white and the rest of the quilt of a print Nancy suggests that you buy four and "one-half" yards of each. This is for the large size quilt. If, however, you use a suggestion given by Martha, one of the members of the club, you will make the star of alternate pieces of print and plain white and then will use white for the strips and a plain color for the background. Or you might want to follow Nancy's plan. She intends to use a pink and white print and plain white for the star, to use a plain white for the strips and a plain color deeper than the pink in the print for the background. Of course, the whole color scheme may be varied to fit the room in which you plan to use the quilt.

Trace the pieces onto lightweight cardboard. Cut them out and then lay them on the goods. With a sharp pencil make a line around the pattern. Then in cutting allow one quarter inch beyond the pencilled line. The sewing is done on the pencilled line which acts as a guide to keep the same and the lines of sewing straight and even. Use number 60 thread for the strips and a small firm knot in the thread. Finish the seam with two or three small firm backstitches.

The actual pattern for "Chained Star" Quilt Design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

ADEQUATE TRUMP SUPPORT.

The minimum biddable suit listed previously could not safely be handled if the bidder's partner were not strictly limited, in raising, to hands containing adequate trump support. The trump strength necessary to be considered adequate depends upon the number of times the suit has been bid.

Adequate trump support for a suit which has been bid only once (and must therefore be assumed to be a minimum biddable suit) is: Three cards headed by at least the queen, or any four small cards: Q 3 2, K 3 2, A 3 2, or 5 4 3 2.

Without so much in partner's trump suit a player should not raise until he has heard his partner rebid the suit (although J 10 x usually is equivalent to Q x x). The responder should find some response other than a raise and, failing to find one, should pass.

Even though Q 3 2, K 3 2 and A 3 2 are adequate trump support, the player should avoid raising immediately, when some other good bid is available.

TODAY'S HAND.

A single bid of an opponent may, at times, sketch a rough diagram of his distribution. The declarer need only be clever enough to interpret properly.

The bidding:

South West North East

1 spade Pass 1 spade 3 hearts

4 spades Pass Pass Pass

West opened the jack of hearts dummy played low, and East signaled with the eight spot. A heart continuation went to East's queen, and then the ace of diamonds was played.

When West followed to this trick with the deuce, East switched back to the ace of hearts.

At this point the declarer found himself in somewhat of a dilemma.

Already having lost three tricks, it was vital to pick up the spade queen.

Not being in the fortunate position of the readers of this article, who can see clearly that the queen was held twice guarded by West, the declarer had to consider the possibility that either East or West might hold the card in question.

If East's heart suit were only five long, West would be forced to follow to the current trick, but if East had six hearts, West now would be out and in a position to overruff any spade that declarer might play except the king, if he held the queen.

Declarer carefully considered the implications of East's three heart bid.

His suit had been shown as no better than ace-queen-ten six tricks. Obviously he had no high card in hearts, and the mere possession of the diamond ace, also shown, could not justify a vulnerable bid for nine tricks.

Therefore, he must have, to compensate his lack of high cards, good distribution, and what other distribution could be good except a heart and diamond two-suiter? And with length in these two suits, it was an odd-on chance that the spade suit was not adversely divided 2-2, but that West held at least three, possibly four, spades.

Of course East might have bid with only five hearts and five diamonds, but this was not as probable as the other diagnosis.

Having made up his mind as to East's most likely distribution, declarer ruffed the ace of hearts with the spade king, and then finished the jack through West. Obviously, his plan succeeded. West's spades were easily picked up and the rest of the tricks were then claimed.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The opening bid was three no-trump. No suit was bid by either partner or opponent. What should have been my opening lead from the following:

♠ Q 2 ♠ Q 9 7 ♠ 9 6 4 ♠ K J 9 3 7

Answer: The heart queen.

800-Pound Tuna Fish Proves Big Problem to General Camp

By Sally Forth.

IT'S a safe bet that General Lindley Camp will never complain again over not being able to catch a big fish. His last complaint on the subject has resulted in his being the owner of a tuna fish weighing the insignificant sum of 800 pounds!

Some weeks ago the genial Georgian was visiting on the west coast of Florida and having rather poor luck as a fisherman. He met Dr. Brinkley, whose radio programs from Del Rio, Texas, are heard over the nation and who was in Florida waters on his yacht. Dr. Brinkley is quite an Isaac Walton and General Camp complained rather bitterly about his own luck, so Dr. Brinkley offered to send him a tuna the next time he caught one.

A day or two ago the Atlanta express agent called General Camp and said he had a package for him. When the general answered that he would run by in his car to pick it up, the expressman laughed and said, "You'd better bring a truck."

Greatly mystified, General Camp hurried over and found a frozen tuna fish weighing 800 pounds awaiting him. The only fortunate thing was that the express charges of $65 had been prepaid!

What to do with the fish is providing quite a problem. General Camp can't even give it away, so he has the monster in cold storage at an ice plant here, where it is creating much attention. And Sally is quite sure that the general will never complain again of fisherman's luck!

JAMES MELTON will fulfill the desire of his life this evening when he sings at the Woman's Club before an Atlanta audience. When he was here several weeks ago he remarked to friends that all of his life he had dreamed of the time when he could appear before an Atlanta audience. His rise to fame reads like a bit of fiction and concerns a young man who was born in Moultrie with a God-given tenor voice who is a concert artist and a moving picture star.

Soon after Jimmie Melton graduated from the University he went to New York city to secure a radio audition. In this he was unsuccessful because he had no card of recommendation, neither could he gain admittance to a manager's office. When he failed to secure the audition, the ambitious young man from Georgia began to release his glorious voice in the corridors, with the result that he was granted an audition and was engaged for radio work immediately.

Among his Atlanta relatives are a brother, W. P. Melton, and family, of Avondale, and an aunt, Miss Mary Melton, who is a teacher in the Atlanta public schools. Dr. W. F. Melton is a cousin on his father's side, and Mrs. Max-E. Land is a cousin on his mother's side.

EIGHT six-foot students in an amazing, though extremely artistic, ballet dance will be given as the junior class' contribution to stunt at North Fulton High school on Thursday evening. And if you think they are not true disciples of Terpsichore, you should certainly see them go through the intricate mazes of their off-rehearsed routine at the school auditorium!

The object of stunt night is to raise funds for the school library and there is great rivalry between the four classes in the skit each has planned for the program. You see, a real live bulldog is the prize offered for the cleverest stunt.

The ballet dancers will appear as dainty sprites, wearing long, blond curls and 18-inch skirts of fluffy tulle. The graceful six-footers include Rudy Geisler, Tom Murray, Alan Sampson, Eric Cocke Jr., Bob Powers, Tom Swift, Carlton McKinney and Alex Hitz.

IN ADDITION to being a charming matron and wife and the mother of one of the popular debutantes of the season, Mrs. Charles Freeman has been leading a double life for the past week as "costume mother." The title generally applied "back stage" is certainly appropriate in Mrs. Freeman's case lately for her deb daughter, Nelle, has been dashing around to so many parties that her mother has been behind the scenes seeing that Nelle's clothes are ready for her as she prepares for each act on the gay stage of social life this season.

The past week, Dorothy Shivers, president of the Debutante Club, has been the house guest of Nelle during the absence from the city of her mother, Mrs. L. Shivers, so Mrs. Freeman has been doing double duty, with two such popular young girls as Nelle and Dorothy.

Atlantans Display Designs.

Misses Ruth and Martha Wald, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland H. Wald, of Atlanta, displayed costumes of their own design and making in a recent fashion review at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, where they are members of the dress design department. A Chicago tour group visited the academy to meet these "designers of the future."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Please express an opinion of the case of the woman who is older than the man she loves. Both are old enough to know their own minds and desires. Both are good clean minded people with strength of character and a great affection for each other that should hold them together. They have waited, testing their love, each wanting to be fair to the other but at the same time wanting most of all to be together—always together, in a time honest way. I am not the rich widow in the market for a husband. EMILIE.

Answer: My humble opinion is that disparity in ages between a man and woman makes very little difference—provided both are old enough to know what they are doing when they sign up for the long sentences. In answering such a question how can one do better than look around at the many marriages, happy despite difference in ages of husbands and wives. Many a woman considerably older than her husband has made a shining success in the role of wife. The mere fact that she is conscious of her handicap puts her to work. You don't see her sort neglecting her personal appearance, complaining of her hard lot, whining about her husband's selfishness, striking for bigger allowances, nagging him in private or "trotting" him in public. She's on her toes to please him and to prove to the public that she's right there with what it takes to make good. Therefore the husband of the older wife has some things that most men rate high; the throne of the crown, the scepter, and the royal robe.

Now if one wants to argue that the wife older than her husband has taken on a large order, there's no answer. Evenly matched in years, a woman grows old much faster than a man and when she is running start on him, she will get to the bottom of the hill long ahead of him. He will be somewhat embarrassed when strangers realize that she's his mother. He will suffer when conversation turns on the subject of birthdays. He will be much more sensitive about the difference in their ages than is the wife. So many have some psychological problems to deal with.

However, you can't beat headwork. The average woman doesn't begin to think until she's well on toward 40. Even if she has had experience, she doesn't understand much of life, love or letters until youth has gone and maturity has come. Now let one of these old girls live in love with a younger man and she can do some of the best pieces of rationalizing, substituting and adjusting that one can read about in the best psychological text books. If she doesn't hold him till death do them part, it isn't her fault.

Perhaps there is a bigger gamble in a marriage when there is a gulf of age between husband and wife, but some manage to bridge it admirably. What has been done can be done again.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am going to pour out my troubles to you. I was engaged to a boy for four months. Then our engagement was broken because of jealousy. During the time when we weren't engaged we would see each other occasionally and talk of the sweet past. Then we got together again. On Sunday afternoon he comes at 2:30 and stays till 5:30, which is long enough but he doesn't think so. He leaves and he's plenty hot when he goes. I am thinking of telling him that if he can't say a goodnight word, getting angry he can make it a final goodnight. Am I right? M.

Answer: Yes, you are right and your boy-friend has good intuition. There never was a love-love less who could get enough of her fiancé, even if he stayed 12 hours instead of three. This is why girls get so tired of fiancés; so they can keep them at their sides 24 hours a day, 365 days in the year. If a three-hour date gives you a surfeit, you are sensible to issue the ultimatum and while your boy-friend may be plenty hot thereafter, he will make himself plenty scarce.

He was later charged with a statutory offense.

1937 Staff of 'Facts and Fancies' At Seminary Announced Today

The staff of "Facts and Fancies" of the Washington Seminary is composed of outstanding girls of the senior class, with Miss Georgia Adams as the capable editor-in-chief. Editors of different departments are: Misses Florence Jones, Julia Block, Kathleen Griffin, Margaret Clarke, Margaret L'Engle, Sue Clapp, Henrietta Colby, Pauline Stauterman and Mildred Wagon. Miss Betty Ann Bird is business manager, assisted by Misses Marian Dinwiddie, Dot Bagwell, Anderson Dumas and Ann Harris. Subscriptions and advertisements were obtained so fast that a day has been added to the spring holiday as a reward.

Not only those in charge of the annual, but the entire school appreciate the graciousness of Margaret Mitchell's permitting them to use "Gone With the Wind" as the theme of the decoration in Facts and Fancies this year. As an alumnae of the seminary she is always deeply interested in everything that concerns the school.

The first school to become one of the national directors of the Needlework Guild, it is fitting that the Thanksgiving offering of the Washington Seminary was made to that worthy organization for the 28th year. Two hundred and fifty-five garments and $17 were given. Of these 55 were made by members of the sewing class. Garments and money were sent or given by "old girls" away from home.

On Wednesday morning in the junior high school chapel was read the first Thanksgiving proclamation by George Washington and that of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. The seniors were invited to join them in singing Thanksgiving hymns. Three notes of appreciation recently visited the Boy's High school to see the soldiers march.

Brown, of Dublin; John Boston, of Marietta; W. G. Townsend, of Waycross; C. E. Hartwell, of Commerce; A. N. Alford, of Hartwell.

Mrs. H. S. McIntosh, of Albany; Mrs. J. M. Simmons, of Bainbridge; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens; Mrs. Harvie Jordan, of Atlanta, will be numbered among Mrs. Conger's guests at luncheon.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—I feel as though a great many things had been packed in the last 48 hours, but I must go back to Friday evening and tell you of a play called "Two Hundred Were Chosen," which I saw that evening. Many of the group who acted in "Let Freedom Ring" and "Bury the Dead" are in this play and the virility and freshness of their performance, even though it isn't quite as finished as it might be, makes it extremely interesting.

This play is remarkable in some ways, though I feel the last part was not up to the standard of the first and second. The author knows the types one meets throughout this country. Both the good and the bad, and it will do no one who has anything to do with government service any harm to see the play and ponder on it.

Yesterday I went to see the Army-Navy football game with my son, John, some of his friends and two or three of my own. I haven't seen a football game in many years and I cannot say that I exactly saw this one, for yesterday afternoon we exemplified a trait many of us have when we get herded together.

We think less clearly and are less considerate when we are acting as a crowd than when we are acting as individuals. Everyone would have seen a great deal more had they remained seated, in spite of the fact that a big group of youngsters stayed on their feet all the time, standing up and then clambering on the seats was the order of the day, and those who could not see were just "out of luck."

However, everyone was good natured and no one can be held really responsible for his actions at a football game. The excitement grows. Most people are young, or revert to their youth, and as a nation we should rejoice in our ability to be lost for a time in our enthusiasm.

I got back to Washington in time to see Katharine Cornell in her new play, "The Wingless Victory." Her voice alone to me is a beautiful and moving thing and this is a very beautiful play. Maxwell Anderson has written fine blank verse and, of course, there is no one on the stage who could bring out its beauty as does Katharine Cornell. I am sure no one needs any urging to see her, no matter in what she appears. But, if possible, do not miss this play. It isn't a cheerful play, but it is one we should be thinking about and it will give you an evening of great emotion.

News from Franklin Jr. is good, so I rather hope I will not be wending my way back to Boston at once.

I am to have a glimpse of Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode today, who really is able to walk fairly well after her accident this autumn.

TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS No. 134

From out of the gloom appeared Togatzi, the Medicine Priest. When he saw Tarzan, he recoiled in surprise. The backward step saved him, for then a shot rang out and a bullet splattered against the wall, near his monstrous head.

"That devil!" screamed D'Arnot; "I should have got him; he's the worst of them all." Then Togatzi lifted his voice and a horde of monsters answered his frantic summons. The Medicine Priest pointed to D'Arnot's gun and commanded: "Take away the lightning stick!"

The monsters retrieved the cell keys from the jailer and rushed on D'Arnot. Again the revolver barked like a savage, angry dog. Then again and again D'Arnot paused to reload with the few spare cartridges in his pocket, and resumed his deadly fire.

Tarzan was dismayed. It was his plan that the bullets should be saved for the time when they could be used to aid an actual break for freedom. Those few steel pellets represented their only hope for escape. "Stop!" the apeman cried, but D'Arnot did not hear.

QUARRY BLAST KILLS 7 IN PENNSYLVANIA

DELTA, Pa., Nov. 30.—(UP)—Seven men were killed today when dynamite being prepared for blasting exploded prematurely in the tunnel of a slate quarry here.

A detailed account of the explosion was not clear and officials of the Funkhouser Company, slate roofing material manufacturers, declined to give out a statement until their investigation is completed.

Five of the dead—Frank Weaver, his son, Ralph; Luther Williams, and two brothers, Winston and Lash Lynn were employees of the company. The other two—Lee Jones and Roy Ayres—had gone to the quarry to repair an automobile.

Several of the bodies were mangled and burned so badly that identification was made by a check on employees working in the tunnel and the recollection of survivors as to where they had been working.
